Since then there has been much talk of the consolidation of the Sheltering Arms with the proposed free hospital of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, but no definite action has as yet been taken. The ladies of the former institution are said to be somewhat divided as to such a consolidation, but it appears as if their determination will not many way affect the character of the institution that the new corporation proposes to establish.

Dr. Hunter McGuire, president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, while talking to a Disparce reporter iast evening, said that it was proposed that $150,000 should be expended in the hospital of that sehool. The Doctor then went on to say something of the proposed college and hospital. He assured the news-gatherer that Richmond was, to begin with, a very desirable place for a medical centre and university. "We propose to teach not only medical students of the several departments, Between 1,500 and 2,000 medical students pass through Virginia every year and go North and West to study their chosen profession. Richmond is also to have splendid improvements at the hospital of the Virgints Medical College. The contracts between the histers of Mercy, the college faculty, and the contractor, Mr. N. E. Ancarrow as to the additions and extensions to make the hospital complete were signed on Thursday, and work upon the building will begin in a few days. The contemplated improvements involve an expenditure of between $6,000 and $7.000. The dispensary is being moved from its old quarters to the college building, where it will be located in future. The sum of $2,400 will be spent in the plumbing alone in the hospital, and all the plumbing alone in the hospital and all the plumbing alone in the commendation to next Monday night to next Monday night

The hygiene of the place will be made persect. Elevators are to be put in and the operating amphitheatre is to be considerably enlarged.

COMPLETE IN EVERY DETAIL.

Dr. George Ben. Johnston, who is prominently connected with this enterprise, stated to a Disparce man last evening that every change necessary to make the hospital complete in every detail would be supposed. Hother Ignatius, who is to have charge of the hospital, recently held the same position in the State Hospital of lows. She was in the city last week.

Dr. WELLYGAD'S RESIGNATION.

Dr. J. S. Wellford, professor of diseases of women and children in this college, has announced that he intends to resign this position and that he will submit his resignation to the Board of Visitors at an early meeting. This body does not convene until about the middle or last of June, when the election of a faculty will take place. No one has as yet been suggested for Dr. Wellford's place. He has been connected with the college in one capacity or another since 1348.

Everything necessary to insure a pleasant time will be arranged, and under no circumstances will disorder be allowed on the pic-nic grounds. It is intended as an occasion on which the members of the order can take their families and enjoy themselves in innocent and harmless amusements.

Germania Lodge, No. 15, is making rapid strides and doing everything in its power to hold its well-won place as one of the leading lodges in the State. The younger members will form a uniform division in that lodge on the 20th of June. There are quite a number of zealous and active Pythians in Germania and once they undertake the formation of a division it is safe to say they will sinceed becomingly. by a decided majority, adopted a resolu-tion in favor of a reform in legal procedure by which law and chancery is to be merged and all causes of complaint asserted by a single form of action. Thereupon the subect was recommitted to the special comnittee with the addition of Hon. J. R. Tucker and Mr. R. T. Barton to its membership. The committee thus constituted was directed to prepare and submit a more was directed to prepare and submit a more perfect form of procedure than that there-tofore reported.

At the beginning of its work the committee found itself confronted with that provision of the Constitution which requires that no statute shall be amended with reference to its title, but the act revived or the section amended shall be remacked and published at length."

Now, as the common-law and equity procedure is referred to in at least 238 sections of the Code, besides a number of full chapters and acts since the Code went into effect, and the adoption of the new system would be an amendment of all of those sections, chapters, and acts, it was evident that to adopt the new procedure will require practically a new Code, with all the labor and expense of a revision. In view of the so recent adoption of the Code of 1887 the committee was unwilling to recommend another revision.

BEFORT A POSSIBLE BASIS.

The committee, with reservations on the part of nearly all of its members as to the wisdom of all the parts of the scheme, reports a system of procedure "as a possible basis upon which to build a better plan." With this scheme is an elaborate set of notes explaining the sources from which the different provisions were derived and the meaning and reasons for their adoption. They can only be fairly understood and appreciated by reading carefully the report itself, which is being published and will be generally distributed to the members of the bar and the press. REPORT A POSSIBLE BASIS

But the committee felt that while the But the committee feit that while the Constitution stands in the way of the adoption of this one-action plan, without a new and complete revision of the Code, it is yet in the power of the Leerisature by the amendment of a few sections of the Code and the adoption of a few independent acts to afford to the public and the profession nearly, if not quite, all the related which the advocates of reform demand. As this, too, can be afforded in such a way as to preserve the old names and to a large extent the old modes of practice and forms to which the bar has been so long accustomed, and from which they are so loth to part, it is thought by many that this mode of reform would be much may extinct out the stands of the product of the stands of the stands

Mr. Tucker, pastor of the church, took an appeal.

In delivering his opinion in this case Judge Minor said, among other things:

"I will say in the outset, in order to clear the case of considerations not pertinent, that the Court has and can have nothing to do do with the policy of the law regulating the sale of liquor. Whether it is right or wrong to permit liquor to be sold or whether the sale of it does more harm than good is a question for the Legislature to determine, and the Legislature has determined it by authorizing its sale upon certain conditions. These conditions are, first, that the place where it is proposed to be sold is convenient, suitable, and appropriate, and secondly, that the person who proposes to sell it is a suitable person to be entrusted with that privilege. If the place is a suitable, convenient, and appropriate place and the applicant for license is a suitable man to be permitted to sell liquor it becomes the duty of the Court to grant him a license."

Very Good Argument Advanced by

Persons in their daily walks in life have many opportunities and advantages if they would only keep their eyes open and their minds active. Have you ever thought of how much you might save by watching for a chance to buy your goods at a genuine reduction sale?

Well, if you have not you have often missed a bargain, and I will give you an example of what I mean. Now, there is an immense jewelry store on Broad street stocked full of the finest quality of sterling and plated silverware, and on Monday morning. May 29th, the proprietors of this establishment will actually and bona-skedly take 20 per cent. off of the price of every article purchased there for the following fiften days. The prices to start with were as low as any in Richmond; so you see what you can gain by calling on Messrs. J. M. Chappell & Co., 361 east Broad street.

Among the beantiful articles they offer are eight tea-sets, quadruple plate, made by Rogers, Derby, Perpont, and Tults silver-plate companies; Rogers & Brothers' knives, forks, spoons, and all kinds of silverware kept in a first-class jewelry store are also offered.

The Messrs. Chappell include in this sale every piece of sterling silver in the house with the same 20 per cent. discount. The reason for this sale is that the establishment has an immense stock on hand and they do not care to carry it through the summer; in fact, it is their policy to give their customers the benefit of the goods at low prices rather than keep the money locked up in silverware.

Besides the regular reduction sale there are some goods a little damaged that will be sold exceedingly low.

Every article sold by this firm is fully warranted to be as represented.
